

SYRUP OF FIGS

NEVER IMITATED—QUALITY.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinal laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package, CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

CITY NOTES

RETURNED HOME.—Jacob Eagle, the South Scranton boy, who was badly frozen a month ago on the mountain back of Lake Scranton, has returned home from the Lackawanna hospital.

MAGNET SENT UP.—Robert Burtell, the 12-year-old boy who was locked up at police headquarters Wednesday for vagrancy, was committed to the county jail yesterday in default of $5 fine.

DIED OF PNEUMONIA.—John Laro, an orderly at the Lackawanna hospital, died of pneumonia at his home last evening. Early had been an orderly at the hospital for about a month. He has a mother living.

NOTE FINE OF THIRTEEN.—M. S. Walsh was arrested last evening on a warrant from Alderman Miller's office, charging him with the "breach of a part of town." He was fined $10 and costs. A. Fieberg is the prosecutor.

DISREPUTED HIMSELF.—A young man, named in a charge of stealing at the big fire Thursday night, made his name as V. Bunting and stated that he was a student at Kingston academy. Investigation proved that there is no such student at Kingston.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY.—Catherine Campbell, of Madison, was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued by Alderman Kagan, charging her with the larceny of a pair of trousers, valued at $10, owned by J. O'Brien, also of Madison. She was committed to jail for her appearance at court.

COMMITTED TO JAIL.—John Boland was committed to the county jail on Wednesday, charged with the larceny of a pair of trousers, valued at $10, owned by J. O'Brien, also of Madison. She was committed to jail for her appearance at court.

PRE-LENTEN SOCIAL.—The Ladies' Aid society of the Evangelical Lutheran church of the Holy Trinity will conduct a pre-Lenten social at 8 o'clock in Guernsey hall, North Washington avenue, on Thursday evening, Feb. 11. A

DEATH OF TERESA IGO.—Teresa Igo, the 10-year-old daughter of John Igo, of 316 Phelps street, rear, who was badly burned about the body by the explosion of a lamp some six or seven weeks ago, died yesterday from the result of the injuries then received. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

THOMPSON DISCHARGED.—Victor Thompson, who was arrested Thursday night by Patrolman Gier and Evans, on the charge of stealing a macintosh and various small articles from Dr. G. R. Hill's room in the First National bank, was discharged by Mayor Blair yesterday, as there was not sufficient evidence against him. Thompson had been assisting in the removal of articles from the fire.

PAY DAYS.—The Delaware and Hudson company paid yesterday at the Van Storch and Dickson street North Scranton, the Delaware mine at Hudson, and the Baltimore slope at Wilkes-Barre. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company paid yesterday at the Hallstead, Hunt, Potomac, Woodward, Acadia, Blue and Archinches. Today's pay will be made at the Oxford, Dodge, Bellvue, Holden, Pine, Taylor, Hampton, Cengage, Shaw, Continental, Bribin, Hyde Park and Archinches.

SERIES OF ENTERTAINMENTS.—The pastor and trustees of the Providence Presbyterian church have issued a very tasty and unique prospectus of a series of three entertainments to be given during the remaining winter months, the first being an organ recital by Mr. H. T. Huffmaster, of the Scranton Conservatory of Music, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 12. The second to be a sacred lecture by Mr. A. V. Bower, consisting of beautiful stereoscopic views, relating more particularly to the scenes of Passion week, on Monday evening, April 1. The third and closing of the series will be a sacred concert by the choir, which will be enlarged for this occasion, the music to be of a Christmas and Easter character, on Easter Monday evening.

HAS EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS.

CLAIM MADE BY THE OLD GAS COMPANY.

Petition in the Quo Warranto Proceedings Is Made in the Name of the Hyde Park Company.

In the petition filed with Attorney General John P. Elkin by the Scranton Gas and Water company, for the institution of quo warranto proceedings against the new Consumers' Gas company, the claim is made by the petitioner that it has exclusive rights for Scranton and its adjacent territory.

The petition is made under the name of the Hyde Park Gas company. It goes on to relate that the Hyde Park Gas company was incorporated Oct. 27, 1875, under the general corporation act of April 29, 1874, to manufacture and supply gas to the city of Scranton.

In this act, in clause 3 of section 51, it is provided, as to gas companies, that the right to have and enjoy the franchises and privileges of such incorporation shall be an exclusive one, and that no other company shall be incorporated for that purpose until the said corporation shall have, from its earnings, realized and divided among its stockholders, during five years, a dividend equal to eight per cent. per annum, upon its capital stock.

The Hyde Park Gas company, it is alleged in the petition, has not paid such a dividend, nor has it ever paid any returns to its stockholders. Consequently, the petitioner claims, it has exclusive rights for Scranton and adjacent territory, and the latter patent granted the Consumers' Gas company, Nov. 28, 1900, were irregularly and illegally issued.

Attorney General Elkin directed the petition to be filed and agreed to fix a time for a hearing to suit the convenience of the attorneys of both sides.

M. E. Olmstead and A. O. Stamm appeared for the petitioner.

Price of Gas.

Editor of The Tribune—

Sir: In yesterday's Tribune the following appeared:

"ACTUAL COST IS LOW."

"There's almost nothing so cheap to manufacture as gas," said Mr. Chittenden, "and I believe that it could be furnished in this city at sixty cents and give the company a great big profit. The cheap quality of watered gas which we are at present receiving and which up to yesterday we have been paying $1.10 for, costs the company considerably less than ten cents to manufacture."

"There's nothing in the gas business when a dollar more per thousand is charged. In certain places in England where coal costs just double what it costs here in the heart of the greatest coal field in the world, gas is furnished today for sixty cents."

It would be difficult to get a better line on Mr. Chittenden's theory for the position to which he has reached, than the above quotations. During our last fiscal year, ending April 1, 1900, we sold 114,914,490 feet of gas. According to Mr. Chittenden, this cost us considerably less than $11,491,449. As a matter of fact, however, the single item of naphtha alone cost us $10,000,000. From which, the value to the public of Mr. Chittenden's opinion on the subject of our only making gas but possibly on other subjects on which he is accustomed to express his views with equal glibness, may be inferred.

Mr. Chittenden tells us of places in England, where gas is furnished today for 60 cents. He refers, I presume, to the cities of Birmingham, Manchester, Glasgow and others. Well, I have been in all those places and being naturally concerned in the question of gas, I have taken the trouble to go there. Instead of a 25-cent power, such as has been maintained in Scranton for the last twenty odd years, the gas there is only about 16 to 18 cents per 1000 feet, and except as a fuel gas could not be sold for a single month in Scranton in competition with the incandescent lamps furnished by the electric companies here. Its cheapness is due to the fact that it is made from soft coal from which much by-products in the shape of coal tar, etc., are obtained to enormously diminish the cost of manufacture, whereas, our gas in Scranton is made with anthracite coal costing $1.10 per gross ton, from which no by-products are to be had, and its brilliancy is due to the free use of expensive naphtha. Our Scranton public has been so long educated to a high quality of light that gas which sells freely in England would not be tolerated here for a moment.

I note that Mr. Casey states that while he does not care to mention the to the company such a small matter as the price above which the new company will agree not to sell gas, it will nevertheless be considerably lower than our price. Concerned in the matter, I may merely observe that while I am far from desiring Mr. Casey's ability to throw away money in any way he sees fit, yet that the Scranton Gas and Water company is perhaps also in very fair condition to meet any one who wants to assist himself by cutting rates.

AFTERMATH OF THE BIG FIRE

GREAT LOSSES SUSTAINED BY INSURANCE COMPANIES.

Conservative Estimates Place Insurance Companies' Losses—Between $250,000 and $300,000—Walsh, the Hero of the Fire Is Out of All Danger and Tells the Story of His Thrilling Adventure—Tom Campbell, of the Phoenix Company, Carries Broken Arm as Fire Memento.

Thousands of spectators yesterday viewed the seven dismal and forlorn bidding looking wrecks of the buildings destroyed by Thursday's big fire on Lackawanna avenue. Throughout the entire day the avenue was lined with curious lookers on, who watched the firemen maintaining a steady stream on the smoldering embers and endeavoring to clear away the burning debris.

Chief Zieglmann was on hand during the greater part of the day, despite his illness, and superintended the work. The flames did not blaze and once, and only in the basements of the Henwood and Matthews buildings was there any need of attention. Here the charred timbers still contained some vestige of fire, and had it not been for the double stream piled steadily, there might have been a small outbreak.

The block presents an appearance discouraging and depressing in the extreme. Of the Henwood, Matthews and Norton buildings, nothing remains but the mere skeletons, and the walls make a grim memento of the three stately structures. Of the Crane building but the mere shell has been left, and the E. Morris building has been completely gutted.

The Golden and Walsh building escaped with the least injury, and S. Morris' place, while not seriously affected by the fire, was damaged to such an extent by water and smoke that the entire building will have to be remodeled. It will be necessary for E. Morris to erect an entirely new building, and in all the other cases, of course, new structures must go up.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

The complete valuations of the seven properties, and of the stock carried by the inmates, as given in yesterday's Tribune, were practically correct. The Henwood building, which was valued at about $55,000, was insured for $27,500. The Matthews building, which, with the lot, makes a property worth about $55,000, was insured for $17,500, and on this $12,000 insurance was carried.

The Matthews fixtures, valued at $11,000, were insured for $5,000, and a $35,000 stock was carried. On this latter there was $25,000 insurance. The firm has moved into the store at 464 Lackawanna avenue, formerly occupied by Hunt & Connell, and expect to be ready for business within a few days.

The Norton building, valued at $29,000, was insured for half this value, and $10,000 was carried on the $15,000 stock. Temporary headquarters have been established by Mr. Norton in part of the National Express company's office at 306 Lackawanna avenue.

F. L. Crane's $15,000 building was about two-thirds insured, and $10,000 was carried on the $15,000 stock. The Golden & Walsh building, valued at $10,000, was about insured for all the loss it sustained. Emanuel Morris' building, estimated to be worth $10,000, being a practical duplicate of the Golden & Walsh building, carried about $7,000 insurance.

S. Morris' building was valued at $11,000, and the necessary repairs to get the building into any kind of condition will run far over the $5,500 insurance carried.

Of the inmates of the buildings, M. J. Horan's entire stock was carried. This ran about $35,000, and a total insurance of $25,500 was carried upon it. B. Moses & Co.'s $20,000 loss was among the other great damages of the blaze. The exact amount of their insurance has not been yet announced, but it is understood to be about three-quarters of the stock valuation.

HEAVY LOSERS.

The fire insurance companies are heavy losers by the conflagration, and it is likely that the amounts to be paid out by them will run between $250,000 and $300,000. The agencies represented by C. G. Boland & Brother are probably the hardest hit, and those of R. W. Larned & Son are also big losers. The latter will have to pay out over $35,000, while the Boland's agencies will have to expend far more than that sum.

The agencies of Moore & Foster, Hitchcock & Son, Henry Bell & Co., the National Fire Insurance company, and others also suffer extensively from the big blaze. It is not a bit unlikely that the losses sustained by the companies will result in an upward jump in fire insurance premiums. Said a prominent central city fire insurance man yesterday afternoon:

"I don't be surprised if these losses, when figured up, will prove to have eaten up the entire premiums from the city proper for the year 1900. Of course, one can't foresee just what effect the fire will have on premiums, but it may result in a raise."

Something substantial to fall back on in a time of need. A common wish and a worthy one—sure; and easy for any earnest soul to satisfy, too.

Of all means under the sun, no other has proved so practical as a savings fund. Can be added to and taken from any time; for it is always ready.

"Companies are taking big risks here, anyway, as there's hardly a year that the losses don't go way up. I tell you Scranton's no bonanza for insurance men. However, something will probably be done about yesterday's fire, and, of course, thorough investigation is anticipated in the matter of ascertaining where the blame is to be laid, if the water supply was at fault, and so on."

Harry Walsh, of 821 River street, the clerk in M. J. Horan's store who fell to the ground from a ladder near the third floor while trying to make his escape from the building after having warned the inmates of the upper floors of their danger, yesterday tested easily at his home. His hip and arm were bruised in the fall and a large amount of inhaled smoke also caused him some trouble, but no serious injuries were sustained by the young man.

Driver Thomas Campbell, who was crushed beneath the ladder when Walsh fell, carried his broken right arm in a sling yesterday, and many others of the firemen are going around with cuts, bruises and burns as souvenirs of the biggest fire experienced here in years.

MISS WALSH DISCOVERED IT. Mr. Walsh was seen at his home yesterday by a Tribune man. A fact not previously announced was brought out in a conversation with him, which was that the young woman who disappeared from the fire and informed Edward Horan of it, who turned in the alarm.

Miss Walsh, who is a sister of Harry Walsh, Miss Walsh is employed in Horan's shops on the fourth floor and had entered the hall of the Henwood building about 2 o'clock. She stepped to the elevator shaft and, on looking down, saw a fiercely burning blaze at the foot. Even as she watched, almost paralyzed at first by the sight, the flames gave a wild, fierce upward leap and a savage tongue of fire shot up the shaft.

Then it was she sounded the alarm of "fire" and her brother, rushing up the steps, warned the car accountants on the third floor, fifty in number, who otherwise might have met a horrible death. He then continued to the fourth floor, but Photographer Grambo and Dr. H. Tilton had already been warned by the shaft of flame and had left by the rear fire escape.

The remainder of the story can best be told in Mr. Walsh's own words. The young man's disposition is of the quietest and his narrative could only be elicited after much persuasion and then was given in the most matter of fact manner. It follows:

"I found myself penned into Grambo's, the stairs a mass of flame and our passenger elevator shaft a raging furnace. The flames had spread from this shaft all over the fourth floor and when I tried to reach the fire escape in the rear I was confronted by a solid wall of fire. The grease in the shaft must have had a great deal to do with the rapidity with which it shot upward."

"At any rate, I was blocked. The fire was fair pouring into Grambo's from the rear and I was forced to climb out of the window and hang on to Grambo's sign. I suppose I held on only for some minutes, but it seemed like centuries to me. I could hear them shouting for me to jump into the street that was stretched below, but I injured one of my legs some time ago and I was afraid to risk a jump."

"At last, after what I think was a great deal of delay, they got the ladder up to me and I started down. Half way between the third and fourth floors the ladder gave way and down I went. What were my sensations then, did you say? Well, I can tell you it wasn't no pleasant dream that I had. 'Poor Campbell, he broke my fall and either I or the ladder broke his arm.'"

The Lackawanna car accountants department will probably be located on the top floor of the Mears building as soon as things can be arranged in shape to renew their recent work. It is some time since they occupy the lost records which were consumed in the flames.

TO EFFECT GANNON'S RELEASE

Full Text of the Act That Judge Archibald Has Drafted.

Appended is the full text of the bill prepared by Judge Archibald with a view to the release of Gannon out of the county jail, where he has been confined since June, 1894, for contempt of court in refusing to sign a deed:

AN ACT
To authorize the several courts of this commonwealth in any proceeding at law or in equity in which a conveyance of lands or tenements shall be ordered and the party who is ordered to execute the same, shall neglect or refuse to do so, or die, or become insane without having complied with said order, to direct that such conveyance be executed with the same effect by the sheriff, prothonotary, clerk or trustee specially appointed for that purpose.

Be it enacted, etc., That in any proceeding at law or in equity in any of the courts of this commonwealth, if the said order shall order a conveyance to be executed by either of the parties to the said proceeding of his or her interest in any lands or tenements to any party or parties, and the party or parties so ordered shall neglect or refuse to comply with the said order and make the said conveyance, or shall die or become insane without having complied therewith, it shall be lawful for the said court to order and direct that such conveyance be made by the sheriff, prothonotary or clerk or by a trustee specially appointed for that purpose, and the said conveyance having been duly executed to the extent ordered by the court, the same shall be deemed to have been duly executed by the party personally; provided that this shall not prevent the said court from punishing the contempt of the said party by fine and imprisonment if deemed necessary; provided, further, that no such order shall be made in case of the decease of such party until notice shall have been given to his or her heirs and legal representatives by process duly served, if resident within the commonwealth, or if not by publication and copy mailed to the last known address of the same, according to the court shall order and direct.

Sec. 2. This act shall apply to any proceeding in which the court shall have heretofore ordered such conveyances to be executed as well as to any in which it shall hereafter be ordered.

The day the bill becomes a law Gannon will be released. Besides effecting this very humane thing the act will supply a deficiency in the law that will be appreciated by the courts. At present there is no way of having a deed legally signed in a case of this kind, where death occurs unprovided for.

$300 will buy 54-acre farm, well watered, new house, cash payment, $200. For particulars, call at office. M.

PURSE OF GOLD FOR PRIEST

GIVEN TO REV. J. J. GRIFFIN OF THE CATHEDRAL.

A Committee from the Sons of His Late Labor, in Carbondale Called on Him Last Night at the Episcopal Residence and Presented the Gift—The Speech of Presentation Was Made by James P. Loftus—Feeling Response Made by Father Griffin.

There was a very pleasant scene in one of the large reception rooms in the episcopal residence, on Wyoming avenue, last night, when a committee from Carbondale waited on Rev. J. J. Griffin and handed him a purse of gold.

The committee was delegated by the friends of Father Griffin in the Pioneer City to bring this substantial token to him. Bishop Hoban appointed Father Griffin chancellor of the diocese a few months ago. Previous to that time he had been assistant to Very Rev. T. F. Coffey in Carbondale. Father Griffin must have served the people up there in a very able way, and at the same time he must have earned their good wishes and, indeed, their lasting esteem, as demonstrated by last night's occurrence in this city. The committee was composed of Mr. J. Dougherty, M. R. Campbell and James P. Loftus. After Father Griffin had received these gentlemen, Mr. Loftus arose and said:

PRESENTATION SPEECH.

Dear Father Griffin: We are come tonight to leave you a testimonial. We are here to give you some tangible proof of the esteem and love that your friends in St. Rose's hold for you. We wish to impress upon you that Carbondale has not forgotten you or your excellent work there during the past years of your busy life. And we wish to express our regret in doing it, for it makes us conscious again of your leaving, and because it reminds us that our poor gift is not commensurate with the debt we owe you.

But we know that you will not measure our generosity or gratitude by the size of our pocket-book. We know, also, that souls are more to you than silver. We believe, too, that what we bring has a value far beyond its intrinsic worth to you and to us. It represents, to us, the good wishes, the blessings and even the heart throbs of your friends in Carbondale.

Only once before, so far as I know, have we taken such action in the case of a retiring priest. We are slow to move in a particular of this kind, and when we do there must be more than a feeling reason for it. In your case, it pleases us to add, we have many reasons. Your whole life among us impels us to make some action, to show in some unobtrusive way why we think of you. We have concluded that your noble purpose, untiring zeal and widespread interest in the church and its people should not be forgotten. You will be pleased to remember, too, that we have kept you longer; but we recognized in the command of our good bishop that he desired you to enter a sphere of greater activity and more responsibility, where your blameless life and splendid abilities would better serve your God. And we are assured that in this higher sphere of yours you will carry on with that same earnestness and loyalty to duty which made noticeable your years of labor among ourselves.

AN AFFINITY EXISTS.

I have often tried to comprehend the affinity that exists between a priest and his people. I have tried to understand it in the sense of giving an exact or equal explanation of its intimate character, its intense nature or its meaningful and far-reaching attributes as a force and factor in the affairs of the Christian life today. There is something magical about it, something about it, Others, too, have speculated on it, only to learn that it defies the best reasoning of philosophy and the subtleties of metaphysics. But some day, perhaps, it will be revealed to us when we pass through this thing we call death and enter the better life beyond.

I wish, dear Father Griffin, and indeed, all of us do, including our beloved pastor in Carbondale, that God will bless you now and in the years to come; that He will help you; that He will hold up your hands and make you strong in the midst of the trials and tribulations of life; and as you take your place daily at that altar, whose scene of glittering chalices encircles the world, we would ask that you sometimes think of us; that you will ask Him to bless us if living, and to have mercy on us if dead, that we, and all the children of men, may see the golden dawning of the grander day.

"Gentlemen," Father Griffin said in response, "you quite surprise me tonight. This kindly action on your part and, indeed, on the part of all my friends in Carbondale, overcomes me. It is not only wholly unwarranted so far as my work in dear St. Rose's is concerned, but wholly unexpected by me. Had I known that my friends in your city were engaged in a work of this kind I would at once take steps to prevent it. But since you have done your work so quietly and, indeed, so very generously, there is nothing left for me to do but to accept your gift in the same sincere and heartfelt spirit in which it is offered."

"This I do, I assure you, and believe me that I shall not soon forget you or fail to value the kindly feelings which prompt your generosity."

"You will be kind enough to convey to my friends in Carbondale the assurances of my heartiest thanks and blessings. Tell them that I spent among them some of the happiest years of my life—years in which friendships have been formed which shall last as long as my life itself lasts. Tell them, too, that I shall find it a pleasure to think of them in my masses and to pray that God may watch over them and, in His own good time, bring them safe home to heaven, a blessing which I wish you all from the bottom of my heart."
